You are going to be able to take advantage of my years of experience preparing candidates for the TOEFL iBT exam.

You receive the very tips I give my own students.

Habit #1:

Channel passion and discipline for the score you need.

Combine your passion and discipline for the motivation you need to do well on the exam.

"Motivation is what gets your started. Habit is what keeps you going," says Jim Rohn, a noted motivational speaker.

At the core, your passion, persistence, motivation, and self-discipline are the most important ingredients to form good habits.

These repetitive actions will translate your test preparation into success on the exam.

Now, let's examine each of these drivers of a winning attitude not only during your test preparation but on test day!

Passion – You have studied English for many years and as a serious candidate, you are now ready to show the world on the TOEFL exam just how strong your skills are.

Clarify your goals and harness the enthusiasm you have for achieving your goals.

Persistence – "Persistence is having the same goal over and over." – Seth Godin

Persistence is the key to success.

Major success seldom comes easily or without a great deal of effort and concentration.

Consistency is certainly a habit that can be learned and practiced over time.

Those individuals who reach their goals often find or develop the ability to keep going long after others have just simply quit.

For example, the habits described in this book require a daily exercise of a specific set of study actions need to be carried out in order to obtain a high score on the exam.

The successful constantly outline specific, attainable goals.

Ex: I will score a 100 on the TOEFL iBT test the first time.

Adjust your study habits to reach this objective with persistence.

Motivation – You want to study at the best university. You need a high score for scholarship money. You deserve a promotion at the office. And you will have it!

Feel energetic and alive by visualizing already that you have received your score results.

You nabbed the score you needed!

Focus on the score you need and channel your energy into achieving it.

That makes easier and more natural the needed action to succeed.

Self-discipline – Successful people are self-disciplined. Pain-staking practice for the TOEFL will yield a high score. I have seen the drive and determination of my own students.

Fortunately, self-discipline is something that you can learn by continuous practice, over and over, until you master it.

While preparing for the TOEFL, keep your attention focused on the most important task in front of you every day.

Conclusion

You are engaged in training for a marathon – the big test day.

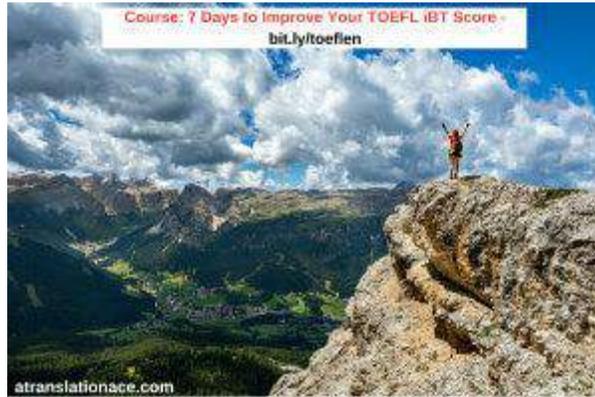

Your attitude and sound mental perspective are essential to be ready for being relaxed and prepared for victory.

Use passion, persistence, and motivation to build the self-discipline you need to attain your desirable score on the exam!
